The 30th annual commencement exercises of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station began Friday afternoon at Storrs and will continue over until Friday (Saturday), when graduation will take place. The class to be graduated will be the largest in the history of the college—52 receiving the degree of bachelor of science and three master degrees at the exercises to be held at Hawley armory today. Forty of the class are bachelors of science in agriculture, eight are bachelors of science in home economics, two are bachelors of science in general science and one bachelor of science in mechanical engineering.

The commencement program opened Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock when class day exercises were held in Hawley armory. H. H. Matthews, class historian, presented in brief form the activities of the class since arriving at college four years ago. A class will be read by Marcus McCarron.

One of the impressive features of the exercises took place at 2:30 o'clock at the college dining hall when President Charles L. Avery, unveiled Professor Monteth's portrait, which was hung on the west wall.

Following the exercises, the various fraternal organizations of the college held their annual reunion, many alumni and guests of the fraternity meetings taking part. In the evening at Hawley armory, a class of 566 was presented by the college dramatic club.

The place of honor in the alumni section this year falls to the class of '27, which is holding a reunion at the college. President Charles L. Avery will be in the line, and the address it is expected that Governor Everett J. Lake will present the diploma.

Following the commencement exercises, the alumni will meet in the dining hall for luncheon at noon. The alumni business meeting takes place at 1:15 p. m., after which the Connecticut Aggies and the Providence college team will play ball on the campus. The class of '17 has promised a stunt during the game that will rival any "Black Guard" production ever staged at the C. A. C.
